FROM THE MANAGER

By Mark Sandoval
Manager of Marinas and Beaches

School is back in session and Labor Day is behind us – where did the summer go??

The topic this month is the slip fee increase. We have been criticized in the past for not providing notification to our customers early enough in the process. The problem is that proposed fee increases move forward to City Council through the budget process. The City's budget is normally passed early in September, and the fiscal year begins on October 1. Therefore, if a fee change is approved, there is not much time for notification.

That said, on September 4, City Council approved differential pricing, 1% increase for wood docks and a 2.5% increase for concrete docks. The new fees are detailed to the right.

This fee increase is reflected on the enclosed bill for October 1. The bill this month will be slightly higher because we need to bring your deposit up to match on-month's slip fee.

As always, happy and healthy boating.

Mark A. Sandoval

SEAWALLS WILL GET A MAKEOVER

The effort to repair the Naples seawalls has taken a major step forward. The California Coastal Commission is scheduled to hear the City's request to proceed with a waterside repair project at the next Southern California meeting, October 9-11, 2013.

"The Naples seawalls are in dire need of repair and must be addressed," said Long Beach Mayor Bob Foster. "Fortunately, a mutually-agreeable solution appears to be in sight."

The Naples seawalls have been found to be in a state of significant disrepair, and are at risk of collapse in a moderate earthquake.

The seawalls are public infrastructure. They are the responsibility of the City of Long Beach. As such, the City has reserved $9.2 million in Tidelands funding for the project.

After significant study of impacts to residents, infrastructure and the environment, the City will be requesting approval of a waterside project to install a new cantilevered sheet pile wall that will not require any tie in numerous impacts including the removal of all the mature trees and the public walkway along the canals, destabilize house foundations and more than double the cost of a waterside project.

"Since joining the Coastal Commission a few months ago, I've been working with coastal and city staff on a win-win project that addresses our immediate needs in Naples. I'm thankful to the Naples Seawall Committee for their extraordinary advocacy and work," said Vice Mayor Robert Garcia.

"I'm pleased we are finally moving forward with this project," said Third District Councilmember Gary DeLong. "While I had hoped this project could have moved more quickly, I am encouraged that both sides are working together to fix this critical issue."

The 108-year-old-seawall can collapse during an extreme storm or earthquake and ruin more than 250 upscale Naples Island homes.

back anchors, and provide maximum protection to adjacent infrastructure.

The City's study showed a land-side project is not feasible because it would result
